Kory Swanson: President/CEO Locke Foundation

For nearly two decades, Kory Swanson has been a central figure in the growth and influence of the John Locke Foundation.

As president and CEO, he oversees the organization's three divisions: research, outreach, and journalism. This includes strategic planning, operations, investor relations, and staff development.

Prior to being named president in 2015, he held the position of Executive Vice President. Swanson holds a master's degree in philosophy from Bowling Green State University and a J.D. from the University of Toledo College of Law.

ABOUT JOHN LOCKE FOUNDATION

The John Locke Foundation defines itself as North Carolina's most trusted and influential source of common sense. The Foundation was created in 1990 as an independent, nonprofit think tank that would work "for truth, for freedom, and for the future of North Carolina."

The Foundation is named for John Locke (1632-1704), an English philosopher whose writings inspired Thomas Jefferson and other founding Founders.

The John Locke Foundation is a 501(c)(3) research institute and is funded solely from voluntary contributions from individuals, corporations, and charitable foundations.

November is Coming! - President's Message

NOVEMBER IS COMING!

My heartfelt warning to Liberals, the liberal mainstream media, and every doomsayer out there:

LOOK OUT DEMOCRATS!

These people are heavily relying on the usual pattern. In a midterm election, the President's party almost always loses seats in Congress, the trend being approximately a 7% loss. The opposition is often energized – but will the base be complacent?

No! This November: THE GREAT RED TSUNAMI WILL TRUMP THE BLUE WAVE!

We will defy history. We will challenge and defeat this so-called blue wave the media loves to tell us about. They are hoping, wishing, conniving and lying. Nancy Pelosi said to her fellow Democrats, "Do whatever you have to do, just win!"

If "each one brings one" to the polls, we will win. America will win. The people will win. Our President will be able to keep our economy roaring and our country safe.

We all have a vital role to play. Rush Limbaugh said on his radio show, "We have always known our enemies. They were always abroad. Now they are within."

Democrats want to change America — they want it to be second rate, they want Socialism. Don't they ever look back and see what happened to the Union of Soviet Socialists Republic, or look southward and see what's happening in Venezuela?

Caring for America will be two-fold this month. We will be collecting canned meats/tuna fish/ stews for the Soup Pantry. We have been advised that they have plenty of peanut butter but are in need of these canned items. Please be generous.

We are also collecting school supplies. Classrooms start off with a great deal of donations, but they are quickly used up.

Some examples of wanted items: Colored pencils and crayons, #2 pencils, glue sticks, ear buds, composition notebooks, kid scissors, dry erase markers, erasers and yellow highlighters.

The Battle of Thermopylae, which took place in the second Persian invasion of Greece, has become a symbol of courage against overwhelming odds. We will use this example of a patriotic army defending its soil. We will perform as these defenders did long ago.

Ways and Means

By Miriam Chu

NUTS, NUTS, NUTS! We will have the nut order forms at the September meeting, to be returned to the October meeting. If you do not plan to attend in September, please have a friend pick up an order form.

August's Split the Pot earned $52.50 for the Club. $52.50 was won by Cathy Jackson. Thank you, Nancy Fiorillo, for your donation to MRW.

Raffle ticket sales for $135 were sold at the brunch. The total amount raised by the raffle was $570.

Congratulations to Tom Beddow, who won the incredibly beautiful "Eagle Tote," painted by Miriam Chu; to Patty Patullo, who won the Riveter tote; and to Steve Woodward, who won the Ann Hand pin.

Jewelry sales at the brunch totaled $50. Thanks to all who supported these projects.

Starting in September, we will be raffling two baskets, beautifully decorated by Diane Authement, and a gorgeous purse donated by Kathy Beddow. Tickets will be $10 each.

Box Tops for Education

When you sign in at the monthly luncheon, please look for a poster and jar at the membership table for Box Tops.

From My Perspective

By Dalton Clodfelter

Dalton Clodfelter

Lt. Col. Oliver North, known for the Iran-Contra Scandal of 1987, has stepped into the spotlight as new president of the National Rifle Association.

While everyone seems to have an opinion regarding this move, I wonder how many truly understand his actions during the Iran/Contra rebellion.

Selling anything to Iran, in my opinion, is a bad idea. Now more than ever. BUT rewind the clocks 31 years - what if you could sell Iran small arms and use the profits to aid an Anti-Communist rebellion in Nicaragua. Would you take that chance?

Containment was our foreign policy, and a good one. Communism was spreading to millions across many countries with no sign of slowing. North saw this and with support among many in the Reagan Administration, he acted.

Of course, giving weapons to Iran was wrong and lying to Congress shameful but to say that North wasn't motivated by freedom seems off base. North is a decorated war hero; a platoon commander during the Vietnam War. During his service he was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal with Combat V, and two Purple Heart medals.

America has fought for freedom and against Communism consistently throughout our history and for good reason. I would like to see honesty when reporting on the current situation of the NRA and Oliver North. Understanding both sides is key. In my opinion, Lt. Col. Oliver North is someone who lost sight of consequences in hopes of stopping the communist threat.

MRW Board Meeting Notice

Board Meetings have been changed to the third Wednesday of the month beginning at 9:00 a.m. and ending at 11 a.m. at the Village Hall in Pinehurst. This begins in September.

Honor Servicemen & Women with Flags

By Pilar Page

The Moore County Vietnam Veterans of America, Chapter 966 invites you to sponsor an American Flag in honor of our servicemen and women and to be displayed on the Field of Honor.

This is a patriotic tribute to the strength and unity of Americans, and honors all who are currently serving, those who have served, and the men and women who have made the supreme sacrifice for our nation's security and freedom.

These 3'x5' flags will stand 8' tall in perfect rows at the West End Fire & Rescue, 4203, NC 73 and Route 211. The flags will be flown during the week of Veterans Day, from Nov. 4 -11. The Opening Ceremony will be held on Sunday, Nov. 4 at 2:00 p.m.

Individual flags cost $15 and will bear the name of its honoree. One honoree per flag. Just complete the form (PAGE 10) and return it with your check no later than Oct. 1.

If you purchased flags that were flown in the Field of Honor last year, you may drop them off at the Sandhills Winery in Seven Lakes, 1057 Seven Lakes Drive, West End and West End Fire & Rescue #61, 4203 NC Hwy 73, West End from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1, 2018.

There is no fee to have a returning flag flown again. Returning flags must be accompanied by a 2018 form.

All flags must be picked up on Nov. 12 at the Field of Honor. Pick up will be available from 10:00 a.m. until noon. Flags that are not claimed will be donated.

Hundreds of NC teachers are flunking math exams. It may not be their fault.

The Charlotte Observer

Almost 2,400 North Carolina elementary school teachers have failed the math portion of their licensing exams, which puts their careers in jeopardy, since the state hired Pearson publishing company to give the exam in 2013, according to a report presented to the state Board of Education Wednesday.

Failure rates have spiked as schools around the state struggle to find teachers for the youngest children. Education officials are now echoing what frustrated teachers have been saying: The problem may lie with the exams rather than the educators.

Lexo Campaign: McInnis, Groups Violated Finance Laws

The Pilot

Michelle Lexo's campaign has filed a complaint alleging violations of campaign finance laws by incumbent Sen. Tom McInnis and groups that supported him.

Lydia Boesch, who served as Lexo's campaign treasurer, detailed the allegations in a July 27 letter to Sheryll Harris, in the campaign finance division with the State Board of Elections. Patrick Gannon, a spokesman for the state board, confirmed that the letter was received Monday.

The allegations will be reviewed and then a decision made on whether any action is warranted. Action could range from requiring amended campaign finance reports, to levying fines, or turning the matter over to a district attorney's office for criminal charges. Full article follow link below.

Portland School Teachers Given "Social Justice" Guides – Praising Islam, Che Guevara, Black Panthers

Gateway Pundit

Teachers in Portland Public Schools are being given a teaching guide called "Planning to Change The World – A Plan Book For Social Justice Teachers." At $18.00 a piece, with 3500 teachers, well, you can do the math to see how much money they're spending just on this planning book.

SPEAK UP!

Take a Stand Against Liberal Lawlessness

(Editor's Note; Speak Up is YOUR space to speak up about an issue you feel touches our members or our community. MRW reserves the right to accept/reject/edit all material submitted. 250 word maximum.)

What just happened in Chapel Hill is a microcosm of what the intolerant "Progressive" movement has become: if you can't get your way through debate, elections and the proper channels of law and order government, then just ignore the rules, do whatever you want, and call whoever disagrees with you small-minded, reprehensible, or even racist.

I want to make you aware of the heroic efforts of our college republicans to fight back against liberal lawlessness. That's exactly what happened when a mob of vandals ran a coordinated mission to destroy "Silent Sam" – the statue of a Southern soldier that had stood on UNC Chapel Hill's campus for more than a century.

While Governor Cooper and the legislative democrats are backing down, our college republicans are fighting back on Fox News. Please check out the clip here:

<https://youtu.be/Qv9y918pBnk>

Can you imagine the uproar if conservatives desecrated public property?

Enough is E-N-O-U-G-H! This is America. We will not tolerate lawlessness. Please help us continue fighting for the ideals of America – open debate, ordered liberty, property rights and the rule of law. Will you stand with us?

Meet Wanda Little

Wanda Little has been a member of Moore Republican Women for 10 years.

She was born in Kentucky where she spent the majority of her early years. After she graduated from Eastern Kentucky University with a bachelor's degree and a master's in education, she moved to North Carolina in 1977, where she continued her teaching career.

Wanda Little

She retired from the Charlotte Mecklenburg School in 2001, where she was a fourth grade teacher, team leader and Teaching Assistant Principle.

Wanda was nominated two times to the "Who's Who Among American Teachers" – quite an accomplishment, since less than 2% are nominated twice.

Wanda moved to Pinehurst in 2003 from Charlotte and built a home in National Golf Club, where she lives with her husband George, who has been very active in Moore County politics as Chairman of the Moore County Republican Party and Vice President, Moore County Republican Men's Club.

Wanda served on the Moore County Public Education Foundation Board for eight years, and presently serves on the Board of Christian Women Connection.

She and George attend the First Baptist Church of Southern Pines, where she has served as a Deacon. She enjoys playing golf, reading, traveling and playing bridge.

Wanda has two sons, Mark and Scott, who live in Charlotte. She and George are the proud grandparents of eight grandchildren ranging in age from 2 to 21.

The Slippery Slope of Abortion Advocacy

By Bekah Bibb

On Aug. 14, I could not believe the headline I was reading, “Chelsea Clinton: Legalizing Abortion Created Trillions in Economic Growth.”

According to several articles, Chelsea Clinton credited economic prosperity from 1973 until 2009 to the implementation of Roe V Wade.

Bekah Bibb

She claims that this period of a “new entrance of women” added “three and a half trillion dollars to our economy.”

Not only is this a terrible argument for murdering unborn children, it’s also out remarkably of touch with women’s values.

First, abortion is not an economic issue, it is a moral one. According to Life News, it is estimated that that there have been 60,069,971 abortions in the 45 years since Roe V Wade. How can one compare the lives of 60 million children with three and a half trillion dollars?

If Clinton did the math, she is arguing that for each aborted child we added $58.26 into the economy. It would disgust every mother in America to be informed that the life of their child is worth a mere $58.26. Just imagine where our economy would be right now if those children were allowed to live.

Second, to suggest that abortions somehow free women to contribute to the economy is a fallacy. According to the U.S. Department of Labor Blog:

70 percent of mothers with children under 18 participate in the labor force, with over 75 percent of those employed full-time.

Mothers are the primary or sole earners for 40 percent of households with children under 18 today, compared with 11 percent in 1960

These statistics do not suggest that children take mothers out of the workforce. They show that mothers are an asset and should be valued.

To suggest that mothers contribute less in some way and could have contributed more if they chose abortion is completely out of touch, to say nothing of human dignity and decency.

If Chelsea Clinton can make this hyper-utilitarian argument and get away with it then, my friends, we are plunging even further down the slippery slope of population control and eugenics in the name of “the greater good.”

(Breitbart News, Life News, and U.S. Department of Labor Blog contributed to this article.)

True History to be Told, Thanks MRW!

MRW has been approached by a fifth grade teacher at North Moore Schools. She asked for our help in purchasing Rush Limbaugh’s History books for her Social Studies classes.

These books are fabulous, extremely well written, and, in every way, make us proud of our heritage and country.

The Board decided that instead of Club money, we would make individual donations. Everyone on the Board contributed one, two, three, and more sets for this worthy cause. Individual members of the Club graciously stepped up and were instrumental in helping us reach our goal of thirty sets, 120 books in all!

Just think of these children learning the truth about our country’s beginnings. This is priceless. Thank you to all for your donations. You should certainly be proud. I know I am beaming because I am your president....

North Carolina's Gerrymander Coup - Wall Street Journal, Aug. 30

The Supreme Court this year punted on deciding two partisan gerrymander cases. Democrats have now refused a fair catch and decided to run the ball back up the field for a touchdown in North Carolina, where liberal judges this week struck down the state's congressional map.

Republicans control 10 of North Carolina's 13 congressional seats though a majority of registered voters are Democrats. Liberals claim this is evidence of invidious discrimination by the GOP Legislature against Democratic voters. What they really want is judges to enshrine a Democratic congressional majority.

Gerrymander cases are typically tortuous, and North Carolina's is no exception. A liberal panel of judges in 2016 invalidated the state's congressional map as an unconstitutional racial gerrymander. The Legislature then redrew the map without considering race while ensuring that the new districts were compact and contiguous and preserved the GOP's majority.

The liberal group Common Cause and Democratic voters sued again, complaining that the new map burdened their First Amendment rights, equal protection under the laws and the Constitution's guarantee that "the People" can elect their representatives.

In January a liberal panel led by Fourth Circuit appellate Judge James Wynn agreed and ordered the Legislature to redraw the maps. The Legislature appealed to the Supreme Court, which tossed the case back to the panel in June after ducking a ruling on partisan gerrymanders in Maryland and Wisconsin.

Thank you very much, Judge Wynn said this week while reaffirming the court's prior decision that the map is unconstitutional because it supposedly dilutes Democratic votes and imposes "burdens on Plaintiffs based on their previous and ongoing political expression and affiliation." The 321-page decision is long on case history and short on legal analysis.

The Supreme Court has long held that political considerations are permissible and even intrinsic to legislative redistricting. The question the Court has been grappling with over the last three decades is how much partisanship is too much. Judge Wynn joined by liberal colleague Earl Britt side-stepped this question and ruled that any political considerations are unconstitutional if judges say so.

The judges conflate partisanship, past voting and political views. Many conservative Democrats voted for President Trump because they agree with his positions on trade and cultural issues, which is one reason he won the state in 2016 despite Democrats' registration advantage.

Partisanship is not fixed on the individual or district level. In 2010 Republicans won a 68-52 majority in the state House and 31-19 in the Senate—the party's first legislative majority in a century. Republican Pat McCrory won the governorship in 2012 by 11.5 points but lost by a smidgen four years later. Even under the GOP's alleged gerrymander, Democrats could pick up three districts this year.

Judge Wynn intends to appoint a "special master" to redraw maps, perhaps in time for the November election. This would create election confusion in the extreme. He apparently wants partisan judges to make political decisions instead of lawmakers elected by "the People." And he has a history of imposing his liberalism from the bench and twice lost elections to the state supreme court before President Obama chose him for the Fourth Circuit.

In a partial dissent, Judge William Osteen explained that "only the state legislatures, through their power to draft congressional districts in the first instance, and Congress with its power under Article I, Section 4 of the United States Constitution, have the authority to remove political partisan considerations entirely from the redistricting process."

Democrats are howling about potential Russian interference in the midterm elections, but judicial intervention represents a more tangible threat to the Constitution's ordered liberty and may determine which party controls the House next year. Earlier this year a Democratic majority on the Pennsylvania Supreme Court redrew the state's congressional map to give the party an edge in as many as five districts.

North Carolina's GOP Legislature is appealing the panel's decision to the Supreme Court, but conservative and liberal Justices might deadlock on whether to stay the ruling before Brett Kavanaugh is confirmed. The Court's dodge this summer allowed liberal judges to pose as legislators, and they are doing so.
